

At HP, we want your job search experience to be safe and transparent, but scammers may pose as HP recruiters or create fake sites and accounts. HP will never ask you to pay money at any stage of the recruitment process, and we will not request bank details, credit card information, or a Social Security number before you are officially hired. We do not conduct interviews or make job offers through messaging apps or social media bots, so be cautious of messages that pressure you to act quickly or direct you to unofficial websites. All legitimate HP roles are posted on our official careers site, and our recruiters communicate using verified HP email addresses—if something doesn't feel right, pause and verify before sharing personal information.